WITHOUT CONVICTIONS.

Watson, the Populist, nominee for president of the United States, struck the mail on the head, when he declared in his speech of acceptance that the Democratic party stole the People's party platform in 1896 and now in 1904 has stolen the Republican platform, and he very pertinently asked how can Democratic leaders now pretend to lead a party based upon convictions. And in speaking on that particular phase of politics and especially the Democratic party's attitude on public questions, Mr. Watson added:

"What principle of Democracy does it stand for? What does it propose to do for the people, different from what the Republicans are doing? To what point is it directing its line of march, except to the Republican camp? Surrounded by the Wall street magnates who had financed his campaign for two years, Judge Parker bided his time till the perils of the two-thirds rule were passed; and when it was too late for the convention to retrace its steps—for even the Democratic bosses require more than fifteen minutes to turn completely round in the cracks the Wall street whip over the heads of his leaders, and with prompt obedience the great Democratic legions were made to furl their flags and reverse their line of march."

Cornwell will never have the opportunity to discharge the duties of governor, much less to build up any thing in his party, notwithstanding the assertion of the Democratic clique sheet that he is becoming known by the people, and in this connection the more he is known the less the people want to have to do with him. There has not been a time in the last two years that he did not bitterly fight the people's interests and the last we heard of him he was still at it. He shielded himself the best he could in the special session of the legislature by doing considerable dodging and then attempting to put on the tax laws a rider or so not germane to the subject matter. But what shows him up is his effort after all these years spent in fighting the interests of the people to make it appear that he is a real tax reformer, and it stamps him as a grand fake in that respect, just like his party is today on all public questions.

Having completely exhausted itself without effect other than to show itself an enemy of the public school system for selfish reasons, the Democratic clique sheet now tries to shift itself from the stand by saying it is because we have not a high school that the schools are corrupt. Reflect a moment. Did that sheet not assail the board of education of the city district and charge it with being politically corrupt? And did not that board make efforts some time ago to establish a city high school by submitting the question to a vote of the people? And here we have that sheet condemning the board for doing or trying to do then what that sheet wants done now. Here is the proof that the charges made against the school board and officers were wholly without foundation. Why need we say more?

The fact that the fair thus far has been unusually successful shows that the people of Harrison county appreciate this splendid institution and will continue to do so as long as it exists. This year's meeting is also strong evidence that the people agree with the management that it should continue. It is to be regretted, however, that there is not more room, more acreage, but this will in large measure be overcome in the near future by a re-arrangement of buildings and the grading of the grounds. With that done the bad feature will be the race track, owing to the fact that it is too small, but the grade of the track may be remedied to such an extent as to overcome some of its objectionableness.

The farmers, merchants, manufacturers and all the exhibitors at the fair not only deserve the premiums they will carry off and the advertising it gives their wares and products, but also the heartiest congratulations of every one for the magnificent displays they have. It speaks well for a county, when such grand exhibits and so many of them are to be seen at a county fair. It shows the thrift, science and industry of the county and its people. It further shows that the people have a civic pride that impels them to co-operate in the great annual fair meeting. It is a state of affairs so commendable that all who have brought it about deserve special mention.

The Democratic clique sheet seems perfectly willing to claim that "school" incident with the intimation that the superintendent of the city schools may have changed his politics. That is no argument, as there is no foundation for it that we know of. But in this connection we believe it was only a few weeks ago that that sheet put up the wall that its editor had been attacked and assailed, when he was out of the city. Now, the city superintendent is out of the city, but that does not deter the News from assailing him. It might be well for that sheet to explain its inconsistency, since it has gone to the pains to taint convict itself.

Because Barnes was once principal of a state normal school, where he had a soft berth, the Democratic clique organ thinks he is entitled to be elected congressman, but the whimper has another taint coming, besides, since it has suddenly manifested such a strange interest in the school teachers of the county, why does it not make the plea that all of them should be sent to congress right away? There are many of them as well or better fitted for the place than Barnes. Come on, now which one would you pick first and how many at a time would you have?

"During the seven years that have just passed there is no duty, domestic or foreign, which he have shirked; no necessary task which we have feared to undertake, or which we have not performed with reasonable efficiency. We have never pleaded impotence. We have never sought refuge in criticism and complaint instead of action. We face the future with our past and our present as guaranties of our promises; and we are content to stand or to fall by the record which we have made and are making."—President Roosevelt's speech accepting 1904 nomination.

"Not only must our labor be protected by the tariff, but it should also be protected so far as it is possible from the presence in this country of any laborers brought over by contract, or of those who, coming freely, yet represent a standard of living so depressed that that can undersell our men in the labor market and drag them to a lower level."—President Roosevelt, in message to Congress, Dec. 3, 1901.

"We believe in reciprocity with foreign nations on the terms outlined in President McKinley's last speech, which urged the extension of our foreign markets by reciprocal agreements when ever they could be made without injury to American industry and labor."—President Roosevelt's speech accepting 1904 nomination.

"We have established in the islands a government by Americans assisted by Filipinos. We are steadily striving to transform this into self-government by the Filipinos assisted by Americans."—President Roosevelt's speech accepting 1904 nomination.

"Assuredly it is unwise to change the policies which have worked so well and which are now working so well."—President Roosevelt's speech accepting 1904 nomination.

GREAT ONES OF THE ARENA.

Such as the Lecussons, the Eddys, the Hungarian Magyars, the Martineks and Mons. Hubert.

The foreign acrobatic features newly added to the Forepaugh & Sells Brothers animal, acrobatic and hippodromatic aggregation, coming to Clarksburg on Thursday, Sept. 8, are many and magnificent. Among them for the first time here, and in fact anywhere except under their canvases, will be seen those perennial Parisian favorites, the seven Bruin Lecussons. These remarkable performers appear in what are classed as the only original equestrian acts known to the circus for the past half century. In introducing them they utilize a spirited four-horse team, attached to a park brake, from the bare backs of one and the seats of the other, each leaving many entirely original and most extraordinary equestrian and acrobatic feats. Those unquestionably pre-eminent acrobats, the Eddy Family, contribute a high class novelty in their new and original aerial stage act, the first and only one of the kind. Mons. Hubert, the extraordinary acrobatic French innovator, among his other originalities, leaps from the ground to the bare back of his horse while holding aloft a sulky by its shafts. He also furnishes a most expert and novel juggling performance while drawn in a park cart, which he finally balances on his chin. The Sarvasi French Troupe of Hungarian Magyars, with unpronounceable names, and in the peculiar dances, heroic acrobatics and mysterious melodies of their prehistoric race, and still another altogether unfamiliar and strangely attractive feature. The show under consideration was the first to introduce a whole clown circus, to whose versatile caricaturists and laugh-makers are now added the four male and female Martineks, introducing among other Parisian hits the Mier and his Gold, French Roving Matches with the Feet, the Comic Catapult and other Frogland rib-ticklers.
